Henderson Police Introduce a New System to Send Crime Alerts to Local Residents

Henderson, NV – In February, 2005, the Henderson Police Department subscribed to a new public safety notification system from CrimeWeb.Net, the nation’s leading provider of e-mail based alert notification technology. The department will use the industry-renowned provider to disseminate crimes and public safety information to local residents and other organizations when situations threaten public safety or require immediate attention.

Henderson Police department became a member of the Internet-based clearinghouse, CrimeWeb Network, in order to email residents about major crimes, registered sex offenders, missing children/adults, school safety information, community information, and homeland security information. The novelty of the CrimeWeb.Net site can be found in its user-friendly versatility. Local community alerts are distributed according to the zip code specifications of the subscribing agency. Alerts are sent to citizens in any of the following ways:

- According to specified zip code(s)
- Up to a 99 mile radius of a zip code
- In between two zip codes

Citizens may sign up for free and interact with public safety departments if they have information or feedback regarding any reported alerts. They can even receive rewards if their information leads to an arrest. To sign up to receive alerts they must visit www.crimeweb.net.

“Crime Web serves as another tool to keep the public informed of important information. Crime Web also enables agencies to reach out specifically to concerned citizens within their jurisdiction. The system creates an efficient avenue for police departments to form partnerships with citizens,” said Todd Rasmussen, Henderson’s Public Information Officer.

From their mobile data terminal in the police vehicle to a workstation, notifications, alerts and events can be disseminated with a few easy clicks. Henderson PD did not have to purchase hardware or software to run the program. It is compatible with any type of operating system that accesses the Internet allowing them availability 24/7.

“CrimeWeb is progressive and has the integrity and dependability you want in an alerting system,” said Danny Defenbaugh, CrimeWeb former CEO and Board Member. “I personally give CrimeWeb my highest endorsement as a service you need to have in place in today’s fast moving and global world.”
